

Vaccai
Practical Method
for High Soprano

PREFACE BY N. VACCAI.

ANYONE who wishes to sing really well should begin by learning how to sing in Italian, not only because the Italian school of vocalisation is acknowledged to be superior to all others, but also on account of the language itself, where the pure and sonorous tone of its many vowel sounds will assist the singer in acquiring a fine voice-production and a clear and distinct enunciation in any language he may have to sing, no matter what may be his nationality.

Experience has shown us that not only in France and England, but also in Germany, and even in Italy, many who are studying as amateurs rebel at the thought of the weary time their professors require them to devote to "Solfeggio." Here they first urge that very trivial plea that, as they have no ambition beyond just singing to please a few friends in the restricted area of their own drawing-rooms, they need not dwell upon all those subtleties of the vocal art which they are ready enough to admit are indispensable for those desirous of commanding a larger and more critical audience from the public stage of the opera or the concert-room. It is to show the absurdity of such an argument, and to win over these faint-hearted ones to the true cause by more gentle means, and as it were, in spite of themselves, that I present this "Method" of mine to the public. They will find it new in design, very practical, very brief—yet very effective—and, as physicians say, "very pleasant to take." The pupil will attain the same goal, and may even beat the record, but he will find the course far less lengthy and laborious, with spaces of contrasted sun and shade to beguile the tedium of the race.

As at first all must find a fresh difficulty in having, as they sing, to pronounce words in a language which is not habitual to them—a difficulty which is not altogether obviated by any amount of study in Solfeggio and Vocalising exercises on the same model,—I have tried to make matters easier by this plan of mine, where I adopt, even on the simple notes of the diatonic scale, words selected from the fine poetry of Metastasio instead of just the mere names of notes or syllables conveying neither meaning nor interest. By these means I trust I have rendered the pupil's task so far less wearisome and thankless that he may even find pleasure in contracting the habit of clear articulation as he sings and, without experiencing any aversion, be led to the study of an indispensable form of exercise. I am of the opinion that not merely amateurs, but also those who think of entering the profession, will find my "Method" useful, for in each individual exercise I have sought to make the music illustrative of a different style of composition and of a distinct emotion, so that the pupil will learn more readily how to interpret later on the spirit of the various composers.

The vocal part of the exercises has been kept within such a restricted compass, not for the greater ease of the greater number of voices, but because of the conviction that at the very beginning it is more advantageous not to strain the vocal organs, and to keep to the medium register exclusively. This is amply sufficient to demonstrate the requisite rules, and, besides, should it be thought expedient, it is always easy to transpose the lesson into a key higher or lower, as the individual capability of the singer may necessitate.

ITALIAN.

Vowels:

General rule: The vowels are very open, and never to be pronounced as impure vowels or diphthongs; they are long in accented syllables which they terminate,—short in unaccented syllables, or in accented ones ending with a consonant.

- a like ah or āh (never ä); e.g., amare [pron. äh-mah'-rēh].
e “ ay in bay (without the vanish t); ē in bed; a in bare (before r). i “ ee in beet; i in bit; i before a vowel, like y (consonant).
o “ aw, or oh (without the vanish ū); ō in ōpinion.
u “ oo in boot; u in bull.

Consonants:

General rule: Even the hard consonants are somewhat softer than in English; the soft consonants are very delicate.

- b, d, f, l, m, n, p, qu, s, t, v, as in English.
c like k, before a, o, u, or another consonant except c, as below.
c “ ch in chair before e or i; cc like t-ch before e or i.
g “ g hard before a, o, u, or another consonant; except before l (pronounce gl like l-y [consonant], e.g. sugli, [pron. sool'-yē]), and n (pronounce gn like ñ in cañon [kan'-yon]).
g “ z in azure (or a very soft j) before e or i.

j like y in you.

r, pronounce with a roll (tip of tongue against hard palate).

Where a doubled consonant occurs, the first syllable is dwelt upon; e.g., in ecco [pronounce ek'-ko, not ek'-o].—Accented syllables take a less explosive stress than in English, being prolonged and dwelt upon rather than forcibly marked.

sc like sh, before e and i.

z “ ds (very soft ts).

GERMAN.

Vowels:

The simple vowels as in Italian;
y like German i or ü.

Modified vowels:

ä like a in bare, but broader; ē in bed.
ö has no English equivalent; long ō can be pronounced by forming the lips to say oh, and then saying ā (as in bay) with the lips in the first position; short ō, by saying ē (as in bed) instead of ā. [N.B.—Long ō is the French eu (in jeu)].

ü has no English equivalent; pronounce long ū by forming the lips to say oo (as in boot), and then saying ee (peet) with the lips in the first position; short ū, by saying i (as in bit) instead of ee. [N.B.—Long ū is the French u.]

Diphthongs:

ai and ei like long i in bite.

ae like ä.

au “ ow in brow.

eu and äu like oi (more exactly ah'-ū, closely drawn together).

Consonants:

f, h, k, l, m, n, p, t, as in English.

b and d, beginning a word or syllable, as in English; ending a word or syllable, like p and t respectively.

c like k before a, o, and u; like ts before e, i, and ä.

g usually hard, but like z in azure in words from the French and Italian in which g is so sounded;—ang, eng, ing, ong and ung terminate, at the end of a word, with a k-sound (e.g., Be'-bung<sup>k</sup>).

* These “hints” are offered as an aid for tyros, and not in the least as an exhaustive set of rules.

HINTS ON PRONUNCIATION.

j like y (consonant).

r either with a roll, or a harsh breathing.

s beginning a word or syllable, and before a vowel, like z (soft); ending a word or syllable, like sharp s; before t and p, beginning a word, usually like sh (e.g. stumm, pron. shtüm [u as in bull]); otherwise as in English.

w " v (but softer, between v and w).

x " ks (also when beginning a word).

Compound consonants:

ch is a sibilant without an English equivalent; when beginning a syllable, or after e, i, ä, ö, ü, ai, ei, ae, eu, and au, it is soft (set the tongue as if to pronounce d, and breathe an h through it; e.g. Strich, pron. shtrid-h); after a, o, u, and au, it is hard (a guttural h).

th like t.

Accented syllables have a forcible stress, as in English. In compound words there is always a secondary accent ("), sometimes a tertiary one(!!!), depending on the number of separate words entering into the composition of the compound word; e.g. Zwi'schen-akt's"musik", Bo'genham"merkla-vier". The principal accent is regularly marked (') in this work.

FRENCH.

Vowels:

a as in Italian, but shorter, often approaching English ä.

â like ah.

e " u in but; e-final is almost silent in polysyllabic words.

è " e in there.

ê " German ä, and always long.

i or î like ee in beet; short i as in English.

o as in Italian.

u like the German ü.

Diphthongs:

ai like ai in bait; but before l-final, or ll, is pronounced as a diphthong (ah'-ee, drawn closely together).

ai and ei like é.

eu, eû and œu like German ö.

oi like oh'-d'h' (drawn closely together).

ou and oû like oo in boot.

eau like ö long, without the vanish u.

Modified by a following n, m, nd, nt or ni at the end of a syllable, the vowels and diphthongs are nasal (exception,—verbal ending of 3rd pers. plural).

Consonants as in English, with the following exceptions:

c. like s in song before e, é, è, ê, and i.

g " z in azure before e, é, è, ê, and i.

gn as in Italian.

h is often mute; no extended rule can be given here.

ll after i is usually sounded like English y (consonant), and frequently prolongs the i (ee); e.g. travailler [träh-väh-yay'], tranquille [trähngkee'y].

n nasal, see above; otherwise as in English. [The nasal effect is accurately obtained by sounding n (or m) together with (instead of after) the preceding vowel; but the sound of e is changed to äh, i to d (in bat), and u to eu.]

m, nasal in certain situations.

er, et, es, est, ez, as final syllables, are pronounced like é.

Accentuation. The strong English stress on some one syllable of a polysyllabic word is wanting in French; the general rule is slightly to accent the last syllable.

Lesson I.

The Diatonic Scale.

In this 1st Lesson, Signor Vaccai has not grouped the letters of the Italian syllables according to the correct rules of spelling, but in such a fashion that the pupil may perceive, at the very first glance, how his voice should dwell on the vowels, exclusively, to the extreme value of the note or notes they influence, and how with a swift and immediate articulation of the consonants he should attack the following syllable. This will greatly facilitate him in acquiring what the Italians call the Canto legato (Chant lié)—though, of course, we need hardly say that here the teacher's example and oral explanation is better than all written precept.

Lesson VII.

Runs and Scale-Passages.

At first, the pupil should take the time of this exercise quite slowly. In after-study, he may work up to a sharp Allegro, progressively, as his capacity allows him. Scales should be sung with extreme smoothness, even and flowingly; but with each note clear and distinct. All jerking and slurring are equally to be avoided.

The musical score consists of four systems, each with a vocal line (treble clef) and a piano accompaniment (grand staff). The key signature is three sharps (F#, C#, G#) and the time signature is 2/4. The piano part features a steady accompaniment of chords, with a p (piano) dynamic marking and a simile instruction. The lyrics are in English and Italian, with the English lyrics appearing above the vocal line and the Italian lyrics below it.

Lesson VIII.

The Appoggiatura taken from above or below.

The Appoggiatura (or leaning note) is the most expressive of all the musical adornments. The effect is gained by borrowing the full value indicated from the note that follows. On some occasions, the singer may slightly lengthen the time; but never, in any case, abbreviate it.

The Acciaccatura.

The Acciaccatura (or grace note) differs from the Appoggiatura in borrowing nothing from the value of the note that follows, though it may slightly intensify its accent. It should be sung with extreme lightness and ease, swiftly, and with the least appreciable time stolen from whatever precedes it.

The Mordent.

Of all the musical graces or embellishments the Gruppetto (or Turn) is, at once, the most varied and the most difficult, from the apparent ease and lightness with which it must be executed. It consists of 2 or 3 notes, and can impart great charm to the singing without influencing the due sentiment of the phrasing of individual passages, or the general intention of the composer. It is, therefore, the only licence that the singer may occasionally take on his own responsibility. The slightest appearance of effort or premeditation is fatal. We may add that modern composers write the notes they wish to have sung, and it is impossible to condemn too strongly the singer's use of any Abbellimenti or vocal ornaments that are not indicated in the music by the composer himself. We are thankful to say this abuse has long since gone out of fashion.

Lesson XIII

The Portamento.

In order to acquire an effective Portamento, the pupil must be careful not to slur one note into the other, with that sort of quavering that one hears too frequently in ill-trained voices—on the contrary, he must so blend the different registers and so bind the notes that they seem to flow into one even tone. When the true art of phrasing has been mastered by the means indicated in Lesson I, the Portamento will offer few difficulties—but here, more than anywhere, is the practical demonstration by a teacher or a proficient of the first importance. Failing these, we must be content with adding that the Portamento can be taken “by Anticipation” or “by Posticipation.” By the first of these methods, the singer attacks the value of the following note with the vowel of the preceding syllable, as was shown in the rules given for Lesson I. In certain phrases, where a great deal of sentiment has to be expressed, this manner is highly effective. For this very reason it must be used very sparingly, as in abuse it sounds affected, and the music grows languishing and monotonous. By the second method, which is less common, the singer attacks almost imperceptibly the syllable that follows with the value of the syllable that precedes.

Lesson XIV.

We need hardly say, that nowhere is a clear enunciation of each word and syllable of more importance than in Recitative — otherwise, it must perforce quite fail in its mission. When we come across two similar notes at the end of a phrase, or several repeated notes in the body of a phrase, the note on which the word-accent falls should be entirely converted into an appoggiatura of the following note. To exemplify our meaning, we have marked with an "A" where such notes occur in the following exercise.

Recitativo.
